

LUNCHEON FEATURE OF HIGHWAY CELEBRATION

Commerce Chamber Wrought
Up by Attack of S. Michigan
Merchants.

A feature of the Lincoln Highway Day celebration here Thursday will be a luncheon in the evening at the Oliver hotel. All good roads boosters are invited to attend this affair. Plates will be 75 cents. Members of the national Lincoln highway committee will be guests as well as prominent good roads men from Michigan and Indiana.

The whole line of march of the circus parade and pageant was announced as changed Tuesday morning by Nelson Jones, marshal of the day. As arranged now the circus part of the parade will come up Michigan st. from Sample and the pageant will be picked up at South st.

The line of march is as follows: Leave Oliver field at 10 o'clock and move on Sample st. east to Michigan, then north to Colfax av., west to Main st., south to Washington, west to Chapin and south to Oliver field. The pageant will form on St. Joseph av. and south st., resting on the corner of Michigan and South, at which point it will follow the circus parade north. All vehicles must be stationed north of 10 o'clock to be properly placed.

Sec'y H. G. Spaulding of the Chamber of Commerce was exceedingly wrought up Tuesday over the statements from the S. Michigan st. merchants to the effect that the Chamber of Commerce had "butted in" and taken away from them the circus parade which they had been in the habit of seeing for the last 15 years.

Spaulding stated that the Chamber of Commerce had nothing to do with the routing of the circus parade. He termed the statements of the S. Michigan st. business men as an outrage and said they were prompted purely by selfish motives.

"Those fellows down there never did and probably never will do anything for this town. Every time the Chamber of Commerce gets behind anything they start to knock it and when the chamber accomplishes its aim these same fellows try to belittle the work."

"I can't see where they've got any 'holier' coming on this circus proposition anyway. When Chairman Abe Frank of the pageant committee went down there to see them about a little financial aid, putting the celebration over, did they help? Not a cent would they give."

AGENTS UNCOVER WHISKEY FRAUDS

Liquor Was Manufactured in Abandoned Distillery at Fort
Smith, Ark. — Government is Involved.

WASHINGTON, June 8. — Secret agents of the internal revenue branch of the treasury department have discovered that whiskey has been manufactured in an abandoned distillery near Fort Smith, Ark., with a known loss to the government and evaded revenue taxes of around $200,000. How much more extensive the fraud may be in other sections of the south is now being investigated by secret agents.

Knox Booth, revenue agent for the Tennessee-Alabama district, as a result of this discovery is said to have disappeared two weeks ago and treasury officials say he is a fugitive from justice.

John L. Casper, president of a distilling company near Fort Smith, is under arrest, held in $35,000 bond, and Guy L. Hartman, one of his associates, was arrested in Kansas City. Revenue officials say he put up a $20,000 bond pending a preliminary hearing, and they say he also is missing. It is said Kansas City was the market for the contraband whiskey and it was bottled and distributed there.

Department officials say there has been nothing developed yet to justify the belief that the whiskey frauds were general throughout the south. But if this should turn out to be the case, the money loss to the government might run up into the millions. A number of minor internal revenue officials are said to be involved. Further arrests are expected within the next two or three days.

The rumor that this contraband whiskey was on the market reached the department last week. The agents were put to work on the case at once. No arrests were made until it was believed a successful case had been worked up. Preliminary to that action Arkansas was taken out of the district of Tennessee in which Booth was revenue agent and attached to the Oklahoma-Kansas district. The arrest of Casper was brought about by J. J. Barkman, revenue agent at Little Rock. The frauds were made possible only by collusion between storekeepers, gangsters and other minor officials, treasury officials say, and the system worked out in Arkansas reached such a stage of perfection that there is fear that it may be in operation in other places.

STEAL LINGERIE FROM CHORUS GIRL'S WARDROBE

When Miss Ruth Wilkes, a Chicago chorus girl, opened the door of her room in the Crescent hotel and saw a pair of trousers on the floor and a pair of drawers hanging from the back of a chair, she notified the clerk and the two made a search of the room and those adjoining. However, neither Miss Wilkes nor the police department have yet solved the mystery. When the hotel clerk and Miss Wilkes returned to the room there was no sign of the intruder and even the trousers and coat were gone.

After an investigation Miss Wilkes reported that she had lost lingerie and other silken garments to the value of $100. Her trunks had been ransacked and the room had been searched thoroughly for the thieves. Rugs having been torn up in places.

Miss Wilkes was a member of the troupe which played in a local theater last week.
